

Klaus Rossler Photography - Fine Art Prints

Photo-Restoration

Damage of your valuable family photos can consist of:

- Deterioration through age and sunlight: unnatural colour casts, fading, loss of detail
 - Foreign matter: writing and pencil marks, coffee and other stains, mold
 - Physical damage: scratches, cracks, ripped into several pieces

In most cases, all of the above is repairable, but requires different methods and can take up several hours of work.

Foreign matter and physical damage is removed manually with a digital pen and tablet. Under high magnification, damaged areas are replaced with samples of a neighboring, intact area and an exact match in colour and texture is achieved.

To be able to achieve the highest possible image resolution to work with, and subsequently, for the resulting quality of the final print, this process requires a high resolution scan made on professional equipment.

Therefore the original photograph is required - in form of either print, negative or transparency (slide).

Your original will be returned untouched. Instead, a new print will be made, which can be of a convenient size - to fit standard frames, avoiding costly custom-framing.

These high quality prints, also known as Giclée-Prints, are made with the same archival-quality materials as my Fine Art-Prints, guaranteed to resist yellowing and fading in excess of 100 years.

Black & White images can be neutral, sepia or hand-coloured, preserving the antique appearance. Various borders and inscriptions are possible.

A digital version for sharing or for your digital photo album is available without additional cost.

I will provide you by e-mail with samples and variations, for viewing and your approval, before making the final print.

Finished prints are delivered in crystal clear sleeves and on backing material, for protection and proper presentation.
